1. Rules and lawful decisions. We will comply with PCPA's constitution, duly adopted policies, applicable procedures and lawful decisions of its authorized bodies.

2. Professional dealings. We will maintain professional conduct, communicate responsibly and seek to settle differences through recognized PCPA procedures.

3. Fair competition. We will make business and pricing decisions independently and will not participate in unlawful price fixing, customer allocation or collective boycotts.

4. Staff movement, handover and prior-employer clearance. When engaging personnel formerly employed by another member, we will encourage orderly handover and reasonable settlement of documented employment-related obligations. We will request appropriate clearance or handover confirmation from the previous employer, preferably before commencement and otherwise within three months of joining. If such confirmation is not available despite reasonable efforts, we will retain evidence of the request, explain the circumstances and cooperate through approved PCPA procedures. This does not prevent lawful employment or override employee rights.

5. Disputed claims. We will provide accurate evidence for any staff-related account or asset claim, answer notices and not treat unverified debts as established liabilities.

6. Product responsibility. We will maintain applicable approvals, supply genuine and compliant products and act responsibly towards customers and farmers.

7. Records and fees. We will provide accurate membership records, report material changes and pay prescribed fees under the adopted Secretariat process.

8. Confidentiality and cooperation. We will protect confidential information, disclose relevant conflicts and cooperate in legitimate reviews and hearings.

9. PCPA conflict decisions. For matters validly referred to the HR Committee under an adopted PCPA dispute procedure, we will participate in good faith and abide by its recorded decision as full and final internally, subject to mandatory legal and governing-document rights.

10. Accountability. We accept fair consideration of established breaches under approved procedures with notice and opportunity to respond. No non-waivable statutory right is surrendered.

11. PCPA WhatsApp Groups, Public Communications and Grievances: We will maintain courtesy, professional ethics and mutual respect in all PCPA WhatsApp groups and other Association forums. We will refrain from derogatory, abusive, misleading or unsubstantiated public statements against PCPA, its office-bearers or members, including on Facebook and other social media. Any concern, disagreement or grievance relating to PCPA shall be submitted in writing through the designated Local Coordinator and handled through the Association's proper channels. Where false, defamatory or malicious allegations are made without cogent grounds, PCPA may, following fair review and an opportunity to respond, take action through its authorized forum and pursue remedies available under applicable law.
